ABOUT THE SEMINAR

The International Seminar on Algebra and Graph Theory with Applications provides a platform for students, research scholars, and faculty members to gain insights into the fundamental concepts of algebra, graph theory, and their applications in mathematical modelling and scientific computing. The seminar features academic enrichment conversations which illustrates the reach of algebraic and graph-theoretic ideas across both pure and applied domains. The seminar will also provide opportunities for academic interaction and knowledge sharing with experts in the field, to enhance the participants' understanding of the role of algebraic and graph-theoretic concepts in the development of mathematical analysis and applications.
